Starter questions and tips for a graduate student “My Story” web profile

Tips
Write it in first person.

Make it personable: Tell it like a story you would share with your child/friend/neighbor.

Write in present tense.

Keep it current. Include:

- Research you do (remember to include the what, where, when and why)
- Courses you teach (they no longer automatically update to your profile)
- Grants, including how much and from whom (this also no longer will automatically update)
• Any interests you’re willing to share so potential students feel they’ve gotten to know a bit about who you are as a person

Provide pictures, charts or graphs to run with your My Story. Remember these should be high-resolution and in focus. If you need a photo cropped or toned, send it to Shawna Richter-Ryerson at shawna@unl.edu. If you need a profile picture taken, Shawna also can do that. Visit her in 911 Hardin Hall. Or you can schedule a sitting with a professional photographer from University Communications.

Questions to get you started
• What is your title/position at UNL?
• What will you be doing here?
• What projects or research are you working on? What questions or issues drive your research and why might these be of interest to students?
• Why did you pursue your field of study?
• What most excites you about working at UNL?
• Provide a little of your history.

Optional:
• What do you do in your free time?
• What’s a fun fact that people wouldn’t know about you (have you traveled anywhere exotic? Made it your goal to eat at all “Diners, Driver-Ins and Dives“ featured on Food Network?)?

Some profile examples
Profiles can be long or short, can include photos or graphs, pie charts, you name it. Feel free to think creatively about how you’d like to present yourself and your work. These are a few examples for inspiration:
