

Big Red Summer Academic Camp

WEATHER CAMP

University of Nebraska–Lincoln

Weather Camp is a week-long residential camp for students who will be entering grades 10-12 in the fall.

Ken Dewey

During the week, campers use instruments to make weather observations. Field trips include visiting a National Weather Service Forecast Office.

Weather campers get to meet actual scientists and learn more about science careers.

<http://go.unl.edu/weathercamp>

A whole week of weather and fun and learning.

Ken Dewey

History:

Our Weather Camp is part of a National Network of Weather Camps. Most activities take place at Hardin Hall, on East Campus of UNL, with several field trips.

Organized By:

The School of Natural Resources
Nebraska 4-H
University of Nebraska–Lincoln

For more information:

<http://go.unl.edu/weathercamp>

Contact:

Dr. Ken Dewey
Applied Climate Science
School of Natural Resources, UNL
715 Hardin Hall, 3310 Holdrege St.
Lincoln, NE 68583-0997
402-472-2908

The University of Nebraska–Lincoln is an equal opportunity educator and employer.